

Kelly Curie Gage Park High School

Chicago, Illinois

Kelly Curie Gage Park High School is a new high school located on a 12 acre site in Chicago, Illinois. The site design included geometry, grading, drainage, paving, and utility design. Coordination was required with the Chicago Public Schools, Public Building Commission, multiple city agencies including Transportation and Water Management, multiple design team members and several utility owners. The design also required coordination with design team for a new middle school construction project located on an adjacent site.
